

ELOSSER GIRL'S SISTER WAS ALSO A CYANIDE VICTIM

NEW SENSATION IN CASE.

Coroner's Inquest Brings Out
More Strange Facts but Mystery Is Still Unsolved.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 7.—Following the astounding testimony that Miss May Elosser, sister of Miss Grace Elosser who, with her fiancé, Charles Edward Twigg, was found dead seated on a sofa side by side from cyanide poisoning, also fell unconscious in the room where the two bodies sat upright, and that she was suffering from a small dose of the same poison, the Coroner's Jury returned a verdict shortly after midnight this morning to the effect that Twigg and Miss Grace Elosser came to their death by cyanide poison, administered in a manner unknown.

That Miss May Elosser had taken the poison which caused the almost instant deaths of her sister and her prospective brother-in-law never was even hinted at until Dr. W. R. Ford, the first physician to arrive after the finding of the bodies, was called at the inquest.

The testimony of the physician put an entirely new complexion on the case. From the day of the deaths Prosecuting Attorney Robb has been positive in his assertions that Twigg and Miss Grace Elosser were murdered. When the finding of the Coroner's Jury was announced Mr. Robb said emphatically:

"Case is Not Ended."
"This does not end the case, non-committal as the verdict may sound. The death of Miss Elosser and Mr. Twigg was not a suicide pact; neither was it murder by one and then suicide. It was a double murder. I am going through with this case if it takes years."

Then the prosecutor added: "I did not expect to convince the jury of the guilt of any one, but I am convinced that murder has been committed. I fastened this inquest merely to clear the air of a lot of false surmises. My work will continue until this hideous crime has been fastened upon some one."

The prosecutor first called Mrs. Koon and Harrington, the latter the Health Officer. Mr. Robb brought out from them that cyanide of potassium had been taken by both this young man and woman. The charging was found only in Twigg's mouth, was not poisoned. The poison had been taken in liquid form.

"Is it possible that it was taken in water?" asked the prosecutor, searching for the theory that a third person entered and offered Twigg and his fiancée a toast in poisoned wine.

Dr. Ford is called.
"It might have been taken in that way," was the response that both made. Then Dr. Ford, who was summoned by Mrs. Carrie See, a married sister of Grace, told how he found Grace's body lying on a bed in a room just back of the parlor, to which it had been removed. Grace was dead, her hands clasped. When he had pronounced her dead Mrs. Elosser said: "Come in the parlor and see what we have here."

There on the sofa was Twigg's body. It was in a sitting posture with hands clasped, and the evidence of clenched hands is regarded as of high importance, showing that the liquid poison necessarily administered in cups, glasses or bottles, was taken in the presence of a third person. If he had died by their own plan death came so suddenly they could not have got rid of the glasses.

Prosecutor Springs Sensation.
Then Prosecutor Robb sprang his first sensation. He asked Dr. Ford if May Elosser had swooned in the parlor while he was examining Twigg.

"She did," was the answer.

"Was it an ordinary fainting spell?"

"No, it was a convulsion."

"Describe all the symptoms."

"Her skin was moist, she foamed at the mouth. There were convulsions and twisting of the body."

"Are these symptoms of slight cyanide poisoning?"

"They are."

"Might the convulsions have been epileptic?"

"In some cases, yes; but in this, no. It was not epileptic. It was every symptom of a poison and of a person who had taken a slight dose of poison."

The doctor said the symptoms would indicate slight poisoning from hydrocyanic acid. He used ammonia for the purpose of reviving her. This testimony was confirmed by Dr. E. L. Broadbent.

Ring Strangely Missing.
Dr. Broadbent said he had found May Elosser lying on the floor in a stupor, with staring eyes, and acting queerly.

Dr. Broadbent defined symptoms of slight poisoning from cyanide, the aims as Dr. Ford had done, but he had not examined May Elosser as she lay on the floor. No poison or anything that had contained poison was found in Twigg's possession. He had the wedding ring.

The family asked him to search Twigg's clothing for a solitary diamond ring which he had given Grace, but which was missing from her hand in death. Mrs. Carrie See, the sister, asked about the ring. It was not found in Twigg's pockets. This ring is strangely missing yet. It was the engagement ring.

Twigg Had No Poison.
Lee Ashe, a clerk for Twigg in his general store at Keyser, who lived with Twigg in the latter's home, Mrs. Ashe caring for the household, testified that Twigg had left on the Saturday morning of his death in the best of spirits. They had no poison in the store or house.

"You were familiar with his affairs?"

"Fairly so."

"Had he any financial trouble or any trouble with women?"

"No, and as he made me his confidant I think I would have known."

Twigg's young brother, Vernon, was called to swear that cyanide of potassium was not used on the farm in the peach orchard or elsewhere. An arsenic solution was used to spray the trees.

The presumption is that the people were offered fruit cake with poisoned wine or that possibly the poison was in the cake itself.

"Did any member of your family or you remove anything from that front room or have you consumed anything?"

"No."

The mother of the dead girl, deeply clad in black, was half carried by her husband and her son-in-law, Will See.

"Have your veil and get a little fresh air, mother," said Elosser encouragingly, and she did so.

"As God is my judge," she continued, "I saw no glasses or bottles in that room. There had been out glass tumblers and a pitcher, our wedding present, on a tray on the piano, but I took it out of the room before Twigg arrived."

Grace and the happiest of disposition, and he far as I know not a trouble in the world or a quarrel with any one."

Carrie See admitted knowing through the crack of the bedroom door while the State's attorney examined her sister May.

Mrs. See asserted that May came to her house, next door, some time after noon.

She Hid the Candy.
Suddenly the prosecutor said to Mrs. See: "You hid that box of candy?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"I didn't want to triplicate any kind party."

"Why did you think of a third party?"

"I don't know."

"Did you hide anything else—wine glasses?"

"No."

Then May Elosser took the stand. The slender figure clad in black and a broad brimmed black hat, she was a pretty face. She took the witness stand fully possessed. She kept looking at the staring assembly.

She described without emotion seeing Twigg and her sister dead on the lounge. She said she could not remember anything more after that than that she remembered that after Grace had been removed she stood in the parlor looking down on Twigg's dead body and wept and fell into convulsions.

"I don't remember. I thought I was in the sitting room, but may have collapsed," she testified.

"I am concealing nothing. I tried to avert no evidence. I swear to this."

MILLIONAIRE SHOT WITHOUT WARNING WALKING IN HOTEL

Head of Oil Companies in the West Killed by Man Who Had Sued Him on a Claim.

CANEY, Kan., Jan. 7.—J. D. S. Nealey, a millionaire, President of the Wichita Pipe Line Company, President of the Lima (Ohio) Trust Company and head of several large oil concerns, was shot and killed in the Palace Hotel here early today by A. O. Trussett, a prominent business man of Caney. The shooting was the result of litigation over an oil lease. Trussett surrendered immediately and was taken to the county jail in Independence, Kan.

Before the shooting Mr. Nealey had been sitting in the hotel lobby reading a letter. Trussett, sitting opposite, had been watching him closely. When Mr. Nealey got up and walked toward the rear of the hotel Trussett hurried toward the door of the house. As Nealey passed the door of this Trussett fired at him twice.

One bullet passed through Mr. Nealey's heart and the other through his left arm. When employees of the hotel left alone, the prostrate man he was dead. President Nealey arrived here yesterday on his regular monthly inspection of oil and gas interests, and of his pumping plant recently erected here.

The killing is believed to have been largely the result of a lawsuit pending between Trussett and the Wichita Pipe Company. Trussett refused to make a statement following his arrest. His friends, however, say the law suit, which was a lawsuit over an oil lease, was the cause of the shooting, and that frequently advisers had told him he was being deceived by the corporation. Trussett is a member of one of the oldest and wealthiest families in Southern Kansas.

BURNED BUILDING SHAKY.

Belief that the bodies of four Chinamen were still in the ruins of the rookery burned yesterday in Chinatown led Inspector Daly and Capt. Neagles for the police and Deputy Chief Langford and Battalion Chief Lawrence for the fire department to enter the burning building to make a preliminary survey today. They came out faster than they went in.

"No fireman enters those ruins in their present condition," Chief Langford announced. "They may fall in at any moment."

The Building Department was notified and Chief Inspector Michael J. Reville looked the building over. He said that a wrecking crew would have to be put to work shoring up the weak parts of the building's high were shaky and advised the police to close Fifth street on either side of the ruins. This was done.
